

Endocrine Disrupting Chemicals & Public Health: How mutuals are taking action.

The negative impact of endocrine disrupting chemicals (EDCs) on health is no longer questionable. This online seminar, co-organised by the Health and Environment Alliance (HEAL), Mutualités Libres and the International Association of Mutual Benefit Societies (AIM), will explore the actions which are being taken at international and European level to reduce exposure to these chemicals. As insurers and care providers, mutuals are deeply committed to act against health-harming EDCs. The event will showcase some best practices from the sector.

29 April 2021

11:00-12:00 (CET)

REGISTER HERE*

#EDCMUT2021

AGENDA

11:00 Welcome and opening

Loek Caubo, President, International Association of Mutual Benefit Societies (AIM)

11:05 The Need for Global Action : WHO programme on EDCs

Dr Maria Neira, Director, Environment, Climate Change and Health, WHO

11:20 Protecting public health by acting on EDCs – State of Play in the European Union

Natacha Cingotti, Health and Chemicals Programme Lead, Health and Environment Alliance (HEAL)

11:30 Mutuals are taking action

Moderated by Genon Jensen, Executive Director, Health and Environment Alliance (HEAL)

Christian Horemans, Mutualités Libres, Belgium

Zékya Ulmer, Fédération Nationale de la Mutualité Française (FNMF), France

Erich Koch, Sozialversicherung für Landwirtschaft, Forsten und Gartenbau (SVLFG), Germany

11:50 Conclusions and call for action – Presentation of the AIM Declaration on EDCs

Sibylle Reichert, Executive Director, International Association of Mutual Benefit Societies (AIM)

*Registration is free. The event will be in English. No interpretation will be available.

